Internship: Product Management (f/m/div)

Job description

Are you interested in the semiconductor industry and would like to learn more from our experienced product marketing team? Semiconductors are a key element in the automotive industry. Infineon Automotive (ATV) is responsible for shaping the future of mobility. We make cars cleaner, safer and smarter. You are currently studying Economics, Engineering or a related subject? Do you bring experience in Power Point and Excel as well as fluent English skills? This could be YOUR chance! Come on board of our growing team in Villach.

In your new role you will support the product marketing central team in:

- Creating compelling PowerPoint presentations: You will be responsible for developing visually appealing and informative PowerPoint slides to support the communication and presentation needs of the product marketing team. This includes effectively communicating complex information in a clear and concise manner.
- Data analysis and automation using Excel and VBA: You will utilize your skills in Excel and VBA to manipulate and analyze data, create interactive dashboards, and automate repetitive tasks. This may involve cleaning and organizing data, performing analysis, and developing macros to streamline processes and improve efficiency within the team.
- Providing team support: You will collaborate with the product marketing team on various tasks, such as conducting market research, analyzing competitor data and preparing reports. Additionally, you may be involved in coordinating internal administrative topics to ensure the smooth operation of the team.
