Corporate Counsel

Job description

Reporting to the Deputy General Counsel in California, you will be the attorney to assist with and/or manage a broad spectrum of legal work. You will primarily be responsible for providing legal advice, guidance and support for commercial law, buy/sell arrangements, and procurement contracts, as well as matters under Mexican law such as employment issues, leases, contracts, and compliance. Apply now if this sounds like your next career move.

In your new role you will:

- Assist with the preparation and review of documents for various commercial arrangements, including sales/customer agreements, distribution and sales representative agreements, purchasing agreements, and licensing and development agreements. Broadly serve as a legal resource for the Company's business, sales and/or procurement teams.
- Assist with various types of matters that are governed by Mexican law, such as corporate, compliance, employment issues, local leases, and other contracts, and generally act as the company's lead Mexico lawyer.
- Respond promptly to requests from internal clients, and summarize and communicate legal risks in a way that business people can understand that pragmatically balances risk with the Company's business objectives.
- Provide leadership on cross-functional teams, identify legal issues, and provide legal options / analysis of possible legal solutions, all while interacting with external counsel (where appropriate), advisors, external vendors, and the business.
- Keep informed of new laws, regulations, and industry trends affecting the Company, and assist with the development of policies and training as needed.

Profile

You are best equipped for this task if you have:

- Law Degree and certification to practice law in Mexico; training and certification to practice law in the US is not required but would be a big plus
- 3-5 years' experience in legal practice (either in a large, international law firm or a combination of a large law firm and in-house experience)
- Fluency in English and Spanish languages
- Significant experience working as a commercial attorney and providing legal advice on a broad set of commercial and/or IP matters
